

SHAMA

Illuminate your space

SHAMA is a table lamp business that specializes in producing high-quality table lamps for customers who desire unique and elegant lighting solutions.

THE BEGINNING

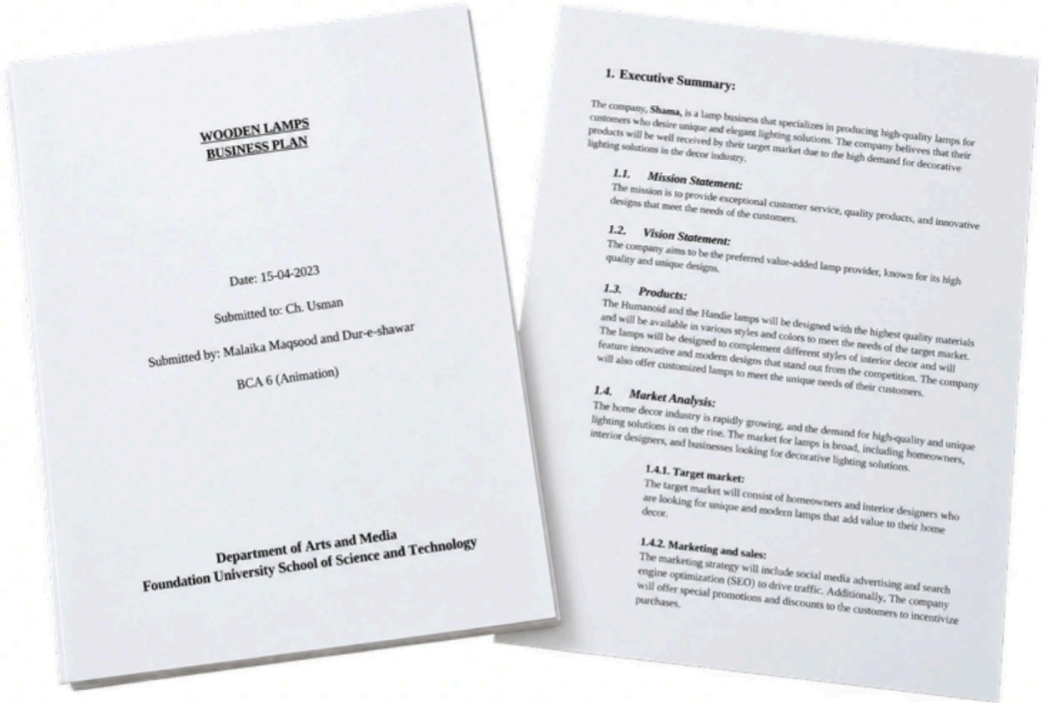

Shama began as a university project to turn everyday lighting into something playful and personal. Together, we developed the Humanoid and Handie lamps, bringing character into functional objects through adjustable wooden forms and sculptural hand designs.

MORE THAN A LAMP

I develop the idea by asking: How can we make this from scratch? Would it be useful? What else could it do? I wanted the lamps to offer more than light. We explored adjustable poses, a book-support function, and different ways to position the lamps for reading, working, and decorating a space.

BUILDING FROM SCRATCH

I sourced raw materials, found vendors, compared prices, and helped make the lamps. I also worked on budgeting, balancing our creative ideas with material costs and practical construction choices.

CREATING THE BRAND EXPERIENCE

I designed Shama's branding, packaging, business cards, posters, catalog, and order receipts. I also created a website where clients could explore the products and connect with the business.

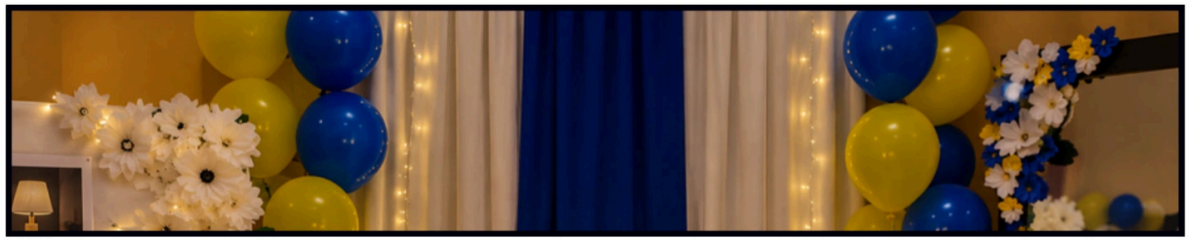

TAKING SHAMA TO THE STALL

For a business event, I helped arrange the stall, product displays, and promotional materials, bringing our lamps and visual identity together for visitors to experience in person.

PROJECT OVERVIEW

From Instagram DMs to a Digital Storefront

Shama is a handcrafted lamp studio selling two signature pieces — the sculptural Handie Lamp and the posable Humanoid Lamp — entirely through Instagram direct messages in Rawalpindi and Islamabad.

As the UI/UX, Branding & Product Designer, I led the design of an experience that could carry the brand's artisanal identity online, from low-fidelity wireframes through a finished visual design, with the product customizer as the centerpiece.

ROLE

UI/UX, Branding & Product Designer

TOOLS

Figma, Illustrator, MS Office, Canva

TIMELINE

6 Weeks · University Term

PLATFORM

Responsive Website

Deliverables

- Product design: Humanoid and Handie lamps
- Brand identity: Logo, colours, and typography
- UI/UX design: Client-facing product website
- Packaging: Branded lamp boxes
- Print materials: Business cards, posters, catalog, order receipts, boxes, packaging materials and standee
- Business planning: Material sourcing, vendor coordination, and budgeting
- Event stall: Product display and complete stall setup

GOALS & OBJECTIVES

What the Website Needed to Do

01

Showcase the Craft

Give each lamp room to breathe with large, considered product photography instead of a cramped Instagram grid.

02

Simplify Customization

Turn a back-and-forth DM negotiation over size, colour and light into a clear, visual, on-page choice.

03

Build Online Trust

Bring the brand's navy-and-gold identity to a proper storefront so it reads as a considered small business, not a side hustle.

04

Stay True to Scope

Keep checkout simple and local — Rawalpindi and Islamabad delivery only — without over-building for a national launch.

TARGET AUDIENCE

INFORMATION ARCHITECTURE

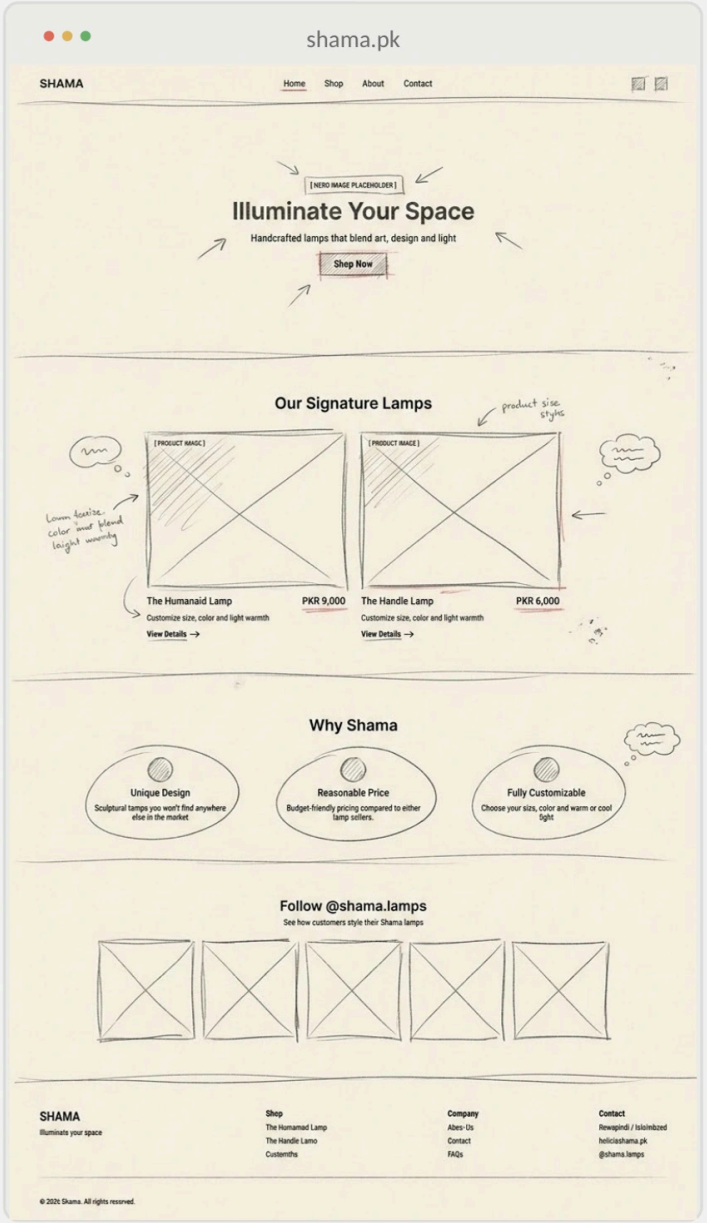

A Simple, Familiar Shopping Flow

WIREFRAMES · LOW-FIDELITY

Structuring the Homepage First

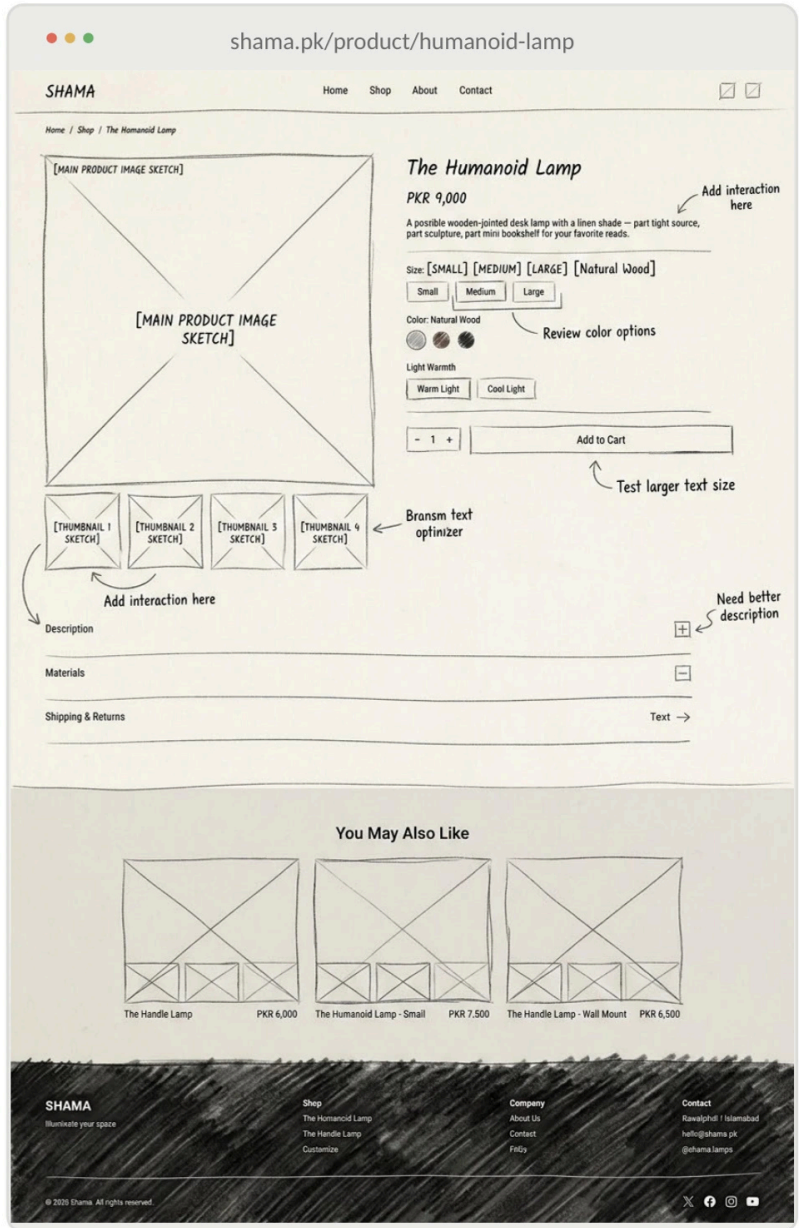

Before any visual styling, I mapped the homepage in grayscale: a hero introduction, the two signature lamps side by side, the brand's value props, and a social proof section linking back to Instagram — the channel Shama's customers already trust.

The Product Page & the Customizer

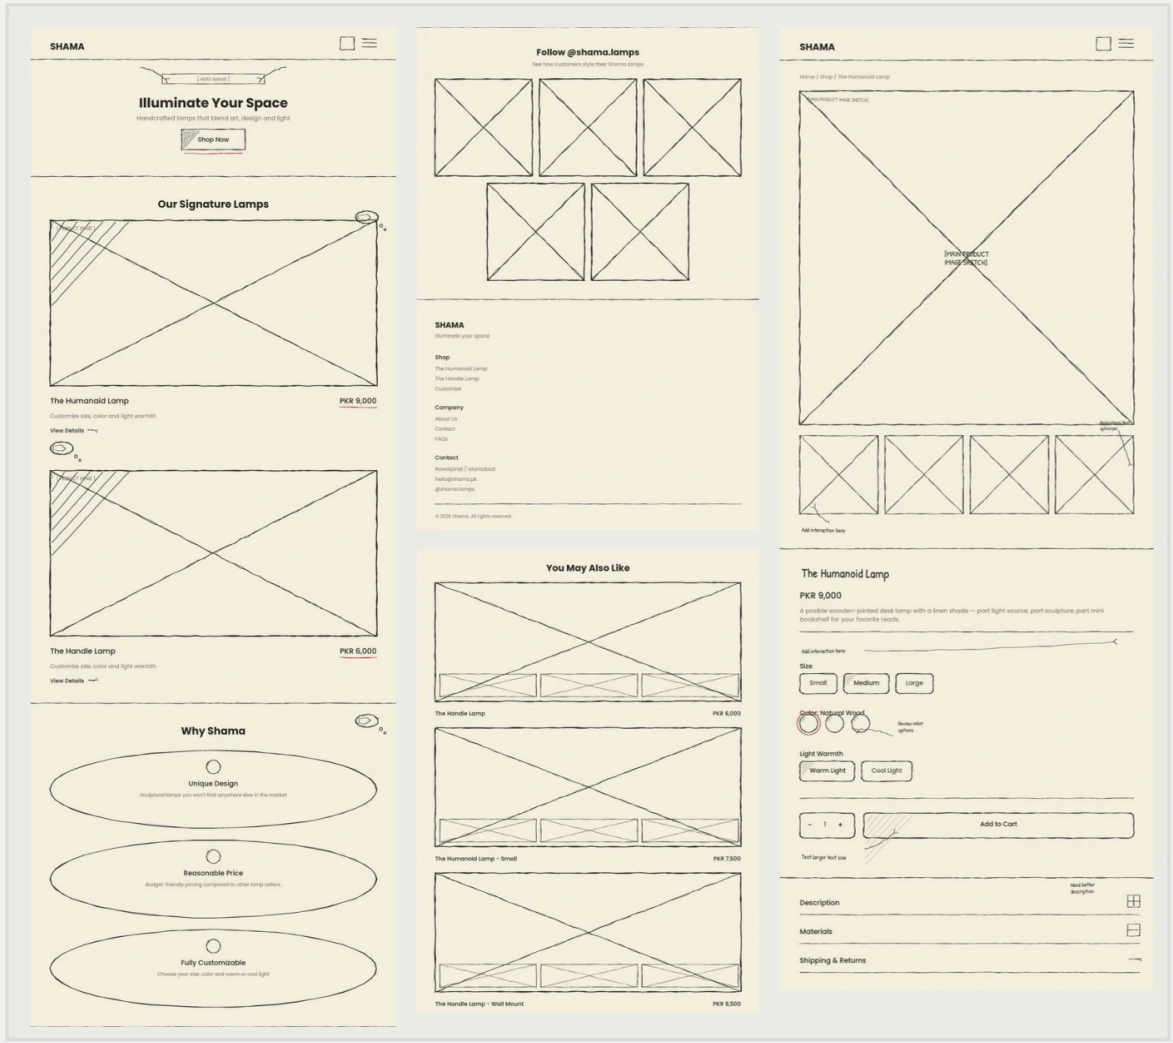

This is the page that replaces the Instagram DM. Size, colour and light-warmth are laid out as clear, tappable choices next to the product photo — with an accordion below for materials and shipping, and related products to keep browsing going.

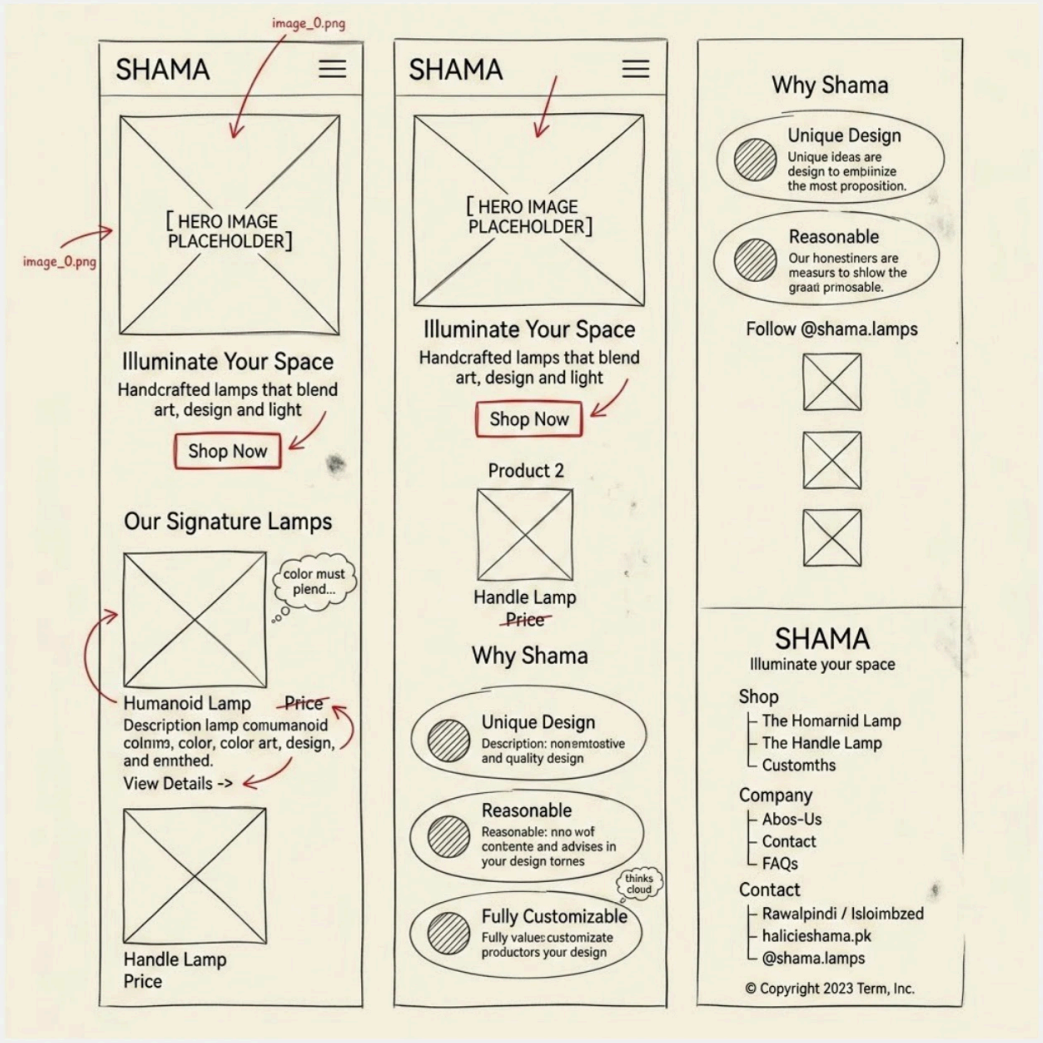

WIREFRAMES · MOBILE

Designed Mobile-First for Instagram Traffic

Most Shama customers arrive from an Instagram bio link — the mobile layout carries the same structure in a single stacked column.

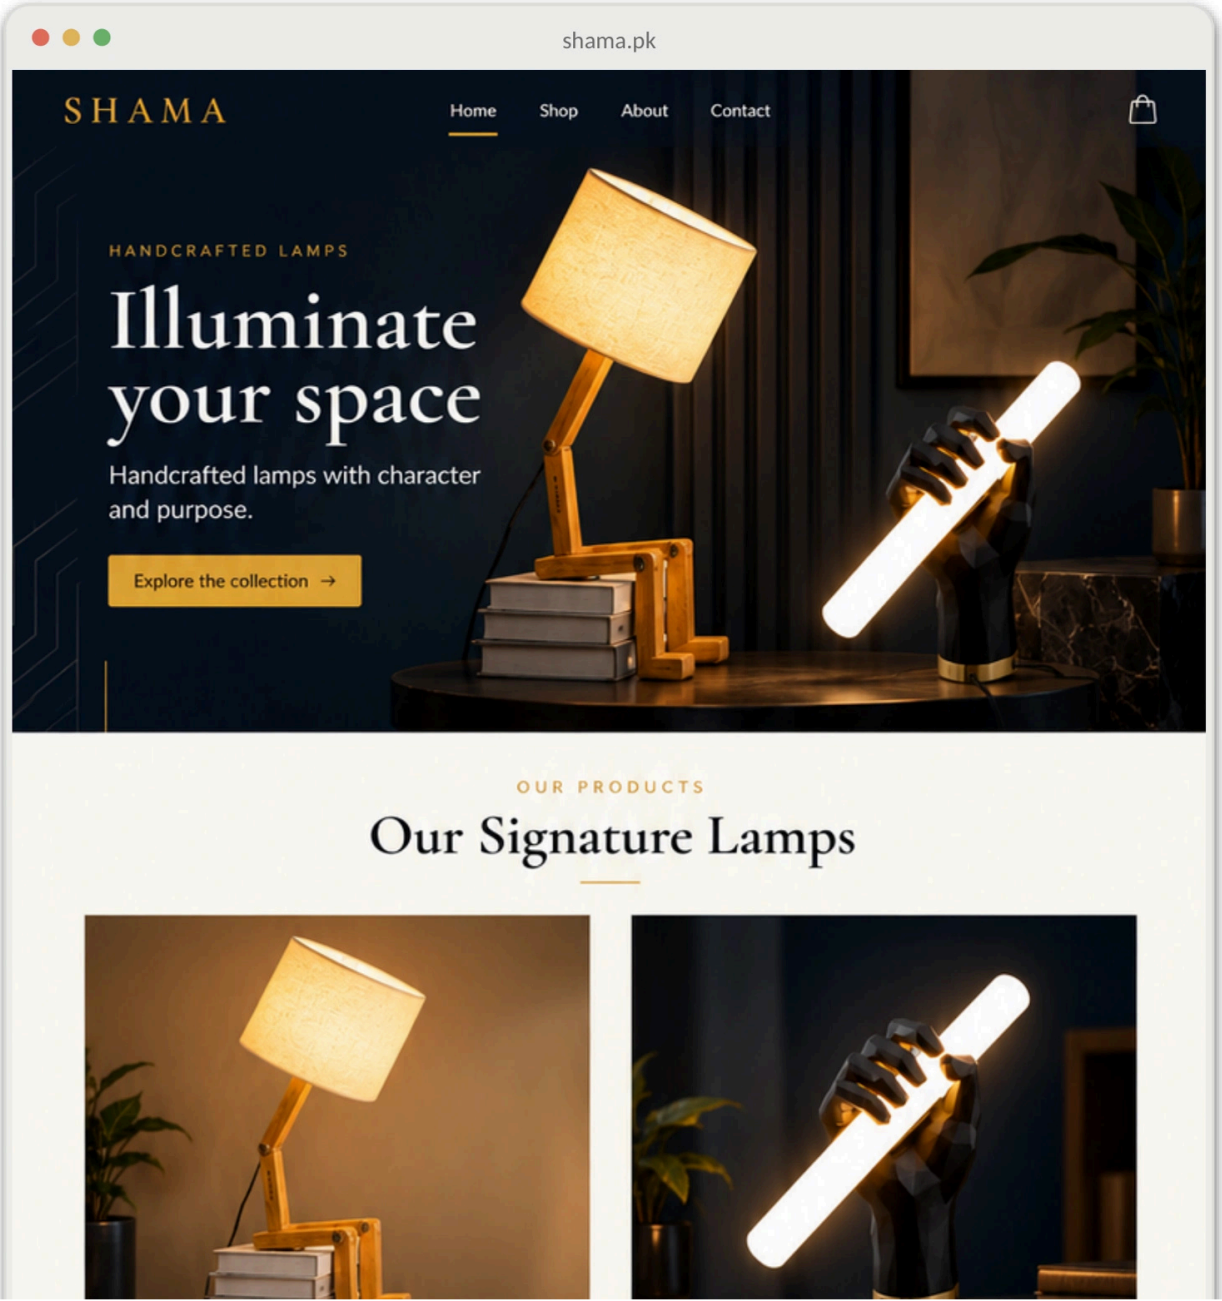

FINAL UI DESIGN

From Grayscale to a Living Brand

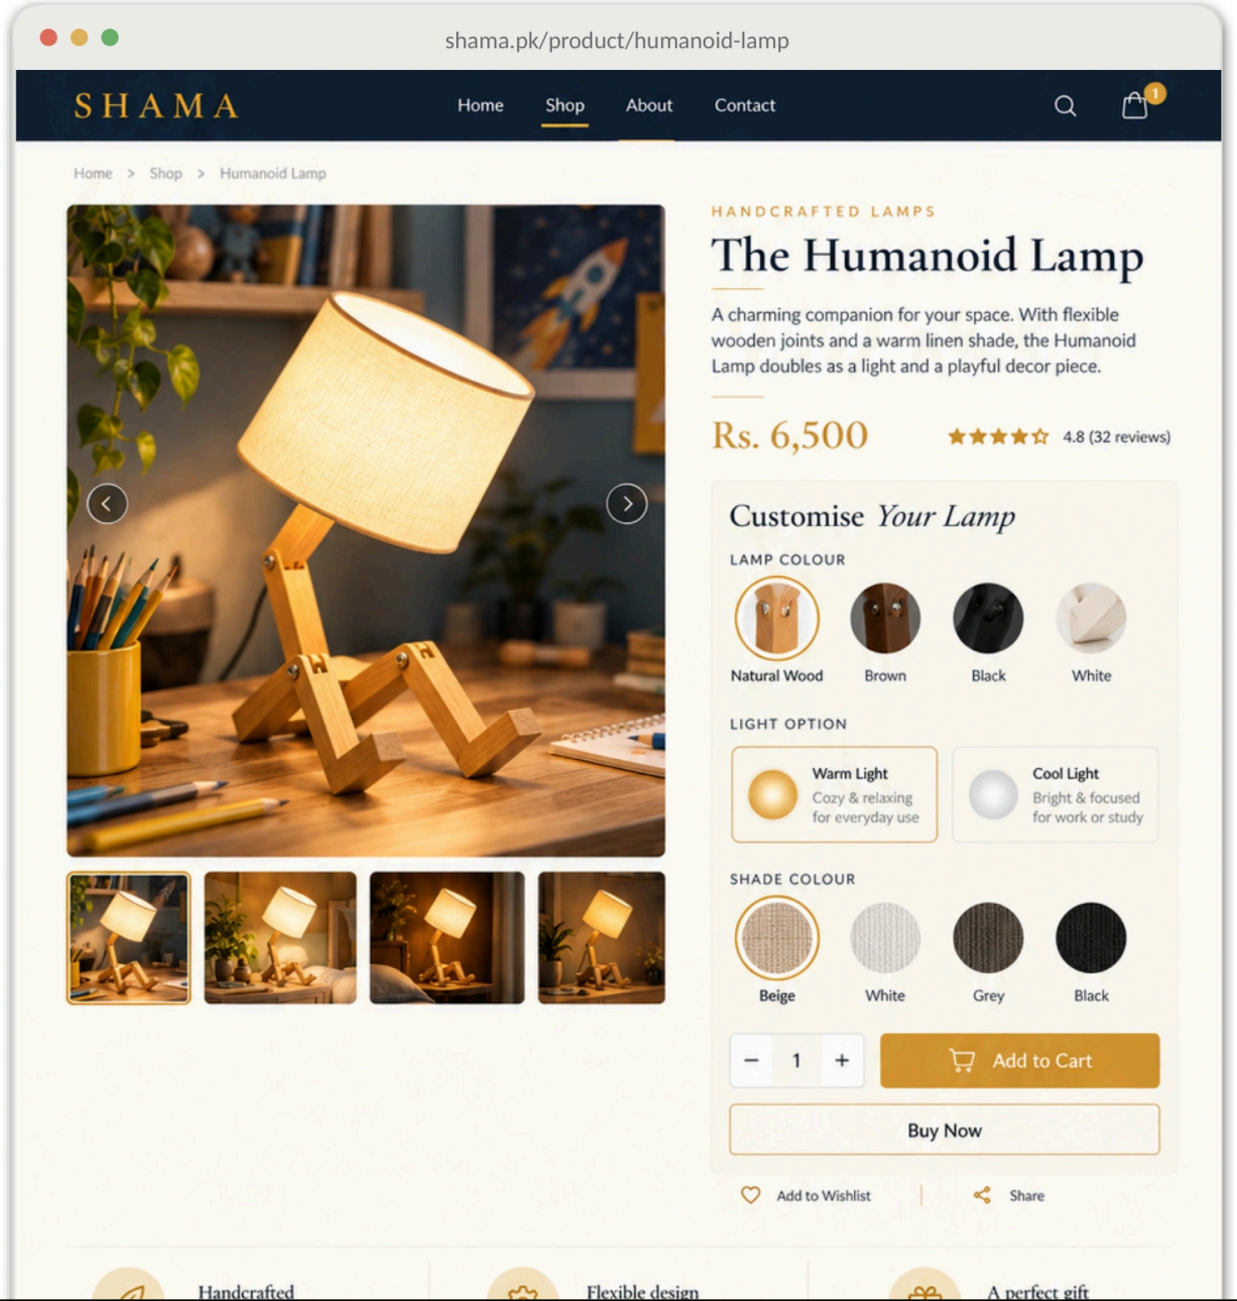

The high-fidelity homepage carries the same structure as the wireframe, now dressed in warm cream, navy and gold — with real lifestyle photography of both lamps in place of grey boxes, and an Instagram strip that mirrors the brand's actual social presence.

FINAL UI DESIGN

The Customizer, Finished

Size, colour and light warmth are now real pill buttons and swatches in the brand's navy and gold, with the gold “Add to Cart” button reserved for this one moment — the site's single clearest call to action.

KEY FEATURE

Designing the Customizer

The single most important screen element — replacing a DM negotiation with three clear, visual choices.

Size

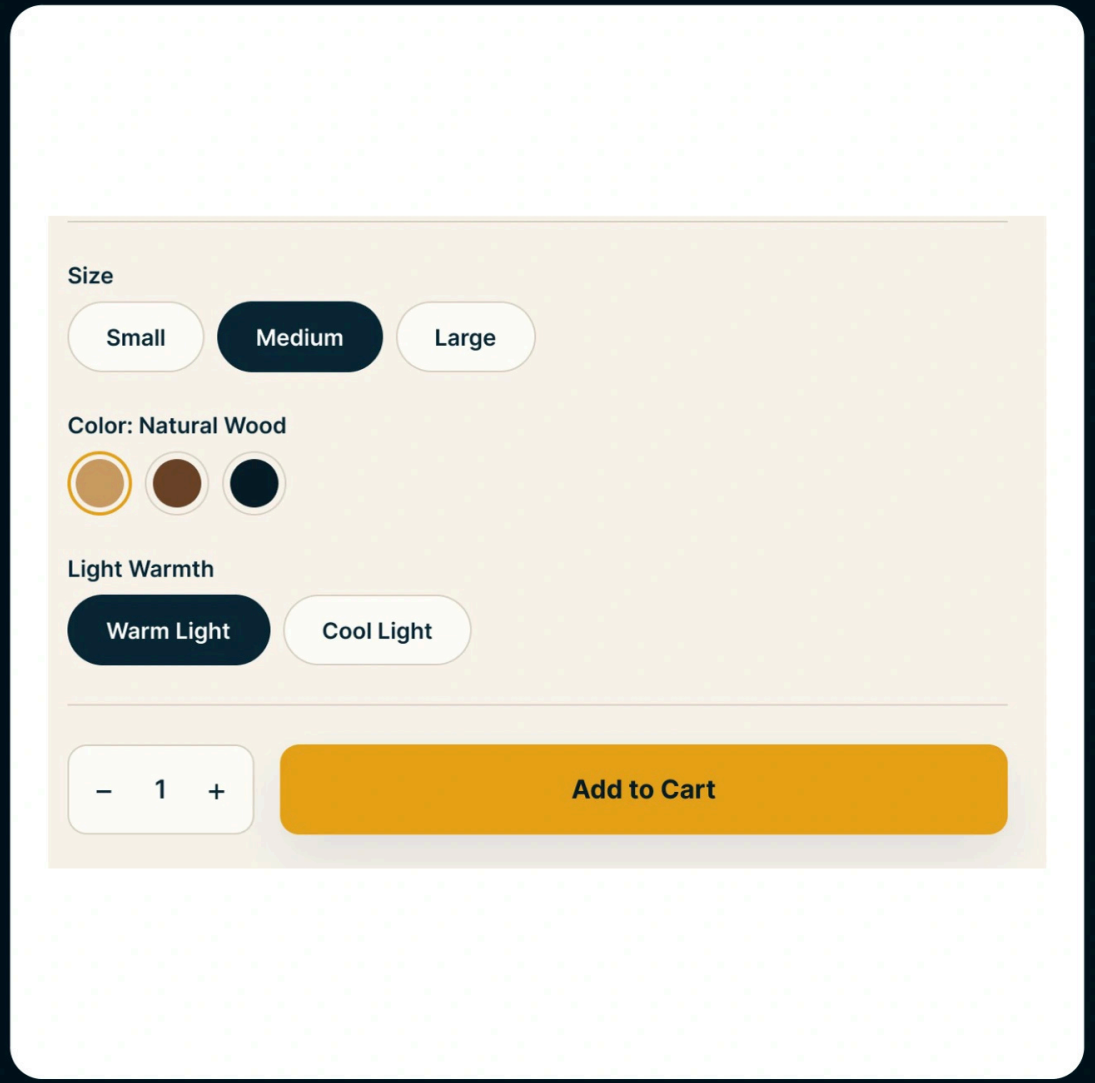

Two sizes per lamp, shown as simple pill buttons — 6"/10" for the Handie Lamp, 10"/15" for the Humanoid Lamp.

Colour

Circular swatches with a visible selection ring, matching the real material finishes — natural wood, walnut and black.

Light Warmth

A warm/cool toggle so customers can picture the lamp in their own space before ordering.

VISUAL SYSTEM

A Small, Consistent Component Set

TYPE SCALE

Illuminate Your Space

Section Heading

REFLECTION

What I Learned

The Challenge

Translating a hands-on, conversational sales process into a static page without losing the feeling of a custom-made product.

The Insight

Customization sells the craft. Once size, colour and light warmth had a real interface, the product itself became the pitch — no sales copy needed.

Next Steps

User-test the customizer with real customers, then extend the same component pattern to a full checkout and order-tracking flow.

Thank You

Let's talk about the next lamp — or the next project.
